Cancellation Penalties and Financial Commitment

Understanding Cancellation Penalties

Because of the nature of our study abroad programs, we begin making payments for services on your behalf as soon as you enroll in one of our programs. We have established the following cancellation penalties outlined below in accordance with the penalties we would incur from our overseas partners should you cancel from a program. Please note that you may incur additional cancellation penalties from your Home Institution - and that the amounts outline below only account for the penalties that you would incur on behalf of CAPA International Education:

- * If you withdraw from a program between 70 days and 60 days before the start of the program, you will incur the following cancellation penalties: $250

- * If you withdraw from a program between 59 days and 46 days before the start of the program, you will incur the following cancellation penalties: 25% of the program fees plus $250

- * If you withdraw from a program between 45 and 22 days before the start of the program, you will incur the following cancellation penalties: 50% of the program fees plus $250

- * If you withdraw from a program from 21 days before the start of the program onward, you will incur the following cancellation penalties: 100% of the program fees.

Should you withdraw from your selected study abroad program, CAPA International Education will bill your home institution for the cost of the cancellation penalties described above. Your home institution will pass these fees on to you, and as noted above may charge additional fees as a result of your withdrawal. Be sure to reference your home institution's cancellation policies for additional details.

I have read and understand the cancellation penalties and financial commitment outlined above
